Moscow

Visitors from the West are often surprised when they see the beautiful mansions and other structures in the Soviet Union.

The role of society, however, is basically unchanged from that of western European counterparts. In fact, they are vitally important in maintaining the status quo.

In many respects, the building is more today than it was in 1919. The Edward Seagram residence is an example of how much has changed over the years.

However, some things remain the same. The building is still called the Edward Seagram residence, and it is located on one of the most important streets in Moscow.

Russia's Brand of Millionaire

The building itself is a fine example of modern architecture. The materials used are mostly marble and granite, and the windows are large and tall.

The Edward Seagram residence is not just a house, but also a symbol of an era. It was built in 1919 and has been the home of many important people over the years.

Fred G. Miller, San Francisco Village and community leader, has been elected to represent the district in the state Assembly.

Proposed and enacted by popular vote, the bill provides for the establishment of a new state agency to be known as the California Water Commission.

Officials within the Republikan Party, under Senator Donald D. Johnston, have developed a plan for the reorganization of the state government.

A quarter crack appeared in Highway 99 and broke a gas pipeline.

Two men make when section of highway is crumbling.
